USD SELECTS NEW VICE PRESIDENT FOR MISSION AND UNIVERSITY RELATIONS

San Diego, December 1, 2003 – The University of San Diego announced recently that after conducting an extensive nationwide search, Reverend Monsignor Daniel J. Dillabough has been appointed USD's Vice President of Mission and University Relations. As Vice President of Mission and University Relations, Msgr. Dillabough will lead USD's institutional advancement programs and Communications and Marketing Office. He will also continue his executive responsibilities in support of the University's mission.

"With his long association with USD, Msgr. Dillabough brings a deep understanding of USD's mission and goals for the future. He clearly has the personal qualities necessary for this very important leadership role at USD," said President Mary Lyons.

"I am honored to have been selected for this key position and look forward to furthering USD's important work in institutional development and communications and marketing," stated Msgr. Dillabough. "I have loved this institution since the day I arrived on campus in September of 1968 to begin my education at the University of San Diego's, St. Francis Seminary. Nothing satisfies me more than to be in the position to give back to a university and a community that have given me so much," added Dillabough.

The University of San Diego is a Catholic institution of higher learning chartered in 1949; the school enrolls approximately 7,000 students and is known for its commitment to teaching, the liberal arts, the formation of values and community service. The establishment of the Joan B. Kroc School of Peace Studies will bring the University's total number of schools and colleges to six. Other academic divisions include the College of Arts and Sciences and the schools of Business Administration, Education, Law, and Nursing and Health Science.
